

Friends of Seguin Island Light Station Caretakers

Application

(updated 11/2014)

Mission: to distinguish Seguin Island Light as part of Maine's heritage, fostering connections with our area's history for generations to come!

The Friends of Seguin Island Light Station offers a volunteer opportunity for two mentally and physically capable, compatible people to live on Seguin Island from Memorial Day to Labor Day, and to act as full-time volunteer caretakers.

Seguin Island is located 2.5 miles off the coast of Maine at the mouth of the Kennebec River. The 64-acre island is 2/3 mile long and 1/4 mile wide. Access is by boat only. The Cove, located on the north side of the island, has a beach that is exposed at half tide for landing a dinghy or boat; there is no dock. The bottom of the island houses The Boathouse, The Donkey Engine House, and the public outhouse. There is a diesel powered, wooden tramway, as well as a 300-yard trail that leads from the beach to the top of the island, which is approximately 150 feet above sea level.

At the top are world class vistas, bar none, plus the Lighthouse and attached duplex housing the Keeper's Quarters and Museum, which also contains Guest Quarters for donating guests. The Whistle House containing the fog horn is 200 yards to the south of the Main building. During storms, access to the island can be severely limited, if not impossible. Prospective caretakers should be aware that during foggy weather, the fog signal blows continuously (twice every 30 seconds) and can be heard for over 4 miles.

(C) Heads up - some challenges to embrace on Seguin Island

Seguin Island life is on a semi-remote island accessible only by sea or air that includes a historical lighthouse, foghorn, and rustic buildings. Along with all the obvious positives, Caretakers must deal with continual lawn and trail maintenance, many visitors, composting toilets, foghorn, isolation, carrying food and potable water in, weather dependent day ashore schedule, and no internet access provided by FOSILS.
